COST OF ARMAMENTS

In an address at the opening of the recent sessions of the International Institute of Criminal Investigation in Washington, President Coolidge called attention to the vast expenditures by the nations for armaments, amounting nearly five billion dollars a year.

This, he declared, is about 70 per cent greater than necessary to maintain the world's peace.

He also pointed out that the Kellogg-Briand pact, whereby they had renounced war as an instrument of national policy, was agreed to with the same enthusiasm by peaceful methods.

He spoke hopefully, however, of the efforts for armament reduction which had been made by the business men of the world in aid of peace.

Meantime the maintenance of world peace is the most important problem that confronts civilization. Compared with it all other problems are negligible. And whenever or wherever it adds to the difficulties of its solution is an enemy of the human race.

The only way to lose by advertising is to let your competitor do all of it.

Familiar Foods in New Guise
By FREDERIC FRANCOIS GUILLOT
Chef, Hotel Astor, New York City

FREQUENTLY the most common mistake in cooking is an added salt, pepper, or some other slight variation in the method of preparation. Sometimes no more is required than a knowledge of seasonings—a little sugar, a dash of salt and pepper, for example, to restore the golden freshness of a vegetable. At other times the result may be attained by the combination of two or more familiar ingredients.

In the kitchen of the Elba Clipper such escapes from the ordinary routine lie in the use of special recipes for supreme delicacy in the culinary art. The housewife who recognizes the value of this secret, and gives it practical ap-

CLARA BARTON

This month marks the fifteen anniversary of the American Red Cross, which is a monument to the devotion and self-sacrifice of a noble woman, who lives in history as one of the world's greatest humanitarians.

Clara Barton was born in 1821, the year she founded the American Red Cross and became its first president in 1881, after service in caring for sick and wounded soldiers during the Civil War and in the Spanish-American War of 1898, and in the Boer War from 1899 to 1902.

She died in 1912, at the age of 91, having been active in the work of the Red Cross almost to the very last, retaining the presidency, last year, when her fee was $2,000.

GRAND JURY RETURNED 53 INDICTMENTS LAST WEEK

On Tuesday night, April 21st, H. I. Boland, a well-known farmer on Route 2, went to a neighbor's house after supper to tell him about the death of little Herbert Richburg, the 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Richburg, the grandmother of Mrs. C. A. Alford, who was born in Pensacola, Fla., on Sunday morning 10:40 o'clock. Texas is said to have caused his death.

There being no stars or moon, Boland had to guess at your directions, as he could not see a thing. After he had gotten his bearings, he realized that he was wandering around in a field in mud with no idea of which field he was in.

The grand jury empaneled last week was recessed on last Thursday afternoon, after having heard 53 indictments. A number of recommendations are made by the body, and for the benefit of our readers, we print them in full:
